The restaurant from Van Nuys offers 52 different courses and drinks on the menu at an average price of $16.6. Nestled conveniently for locals, this restaurant has garnered mixed feedback. While some patrons praise its fresh and delicious teriyaki bowls, others lament rising prices and diminishing food quality. The service remains a highlight, with friendly staff enhancing the dining experience. However, there are notable service lapses, such as missing condiments, which leave some diners disappointed. Overall, this spot retains a loyal following, particularly among visitors who appreciate its hearty offerings and inviting atmosphere, though it faces pressure to maintain consistency amidst changing expectations. As it stands, the restaurant embodies both charm and challenge in the culinary landscape.
