The restaurant from Rome offers 76 different dishes and drinks on the menu at an average price of $9.2. At Jerusalem Grill, diners can expect a mixed experience steeped in Mediterranean charm. While some guests rave about the rich hummus, delightful falafel options, and attentive staff, others have voiced disappointment regarding overcooked lamb kabobs and subpar gyro dishes. The ambiance is generally welcoming, and the portion sizes leave patrons feeling satisfied. Although some menu items, like the baklava, may feel mass-produced, many recommend the chicken kabob plate and lentil soup for their generous serving sizes and flavors. Overall, Jerusalem Grill offers a budget-friendly option for those seeking authentic Mediterranean cuisine, though experiences may vary.
