A recent visit to Pine State Biscuits left a group of diners deeply disappointed, with slow service and cold food overshadowing the delicious menu offerings. The experience included lengthy wait times, unattended tables, and unapologetic staff. However, the food itself was excellent, with tasty options like the chicken fried steak and mushroom gravy earning praise. Despite the small dining area and limited tea selection, the friendly staff and Southern-inspired dishes make this breakfast spot worth a visit. For those with a big appetite, the Reggie or brisket biscuits come highly recommended. Overall, Pine State Biscuits remains a popular choice for delicious comfort food in the PDX area.
