At Hexenhut, the ambiance and food truck offerings once delighted families, yet recent experiences have raised concerns. Diners reported disappointing food quality, with dry and overcooked items, slow service, and high prices, leaving many feeling undervalued. Complaints about management's lack of accommodation and inclusivity for customers with allergies added to the overall dissatisfaction. In contrast, Witch's Hat Brewery garnered praise for its innovative beers and flavorful dishes, although some patrons hesitated due to perceived political displays. While the atmosphere and craft beer joyfully united visitors, inconsistent service and menu execution left others pondering their return.
