This restaurant offers a unique dining experience, combining food truck vibes with restaurant prices. While the pulled pork was average, the jerk chicken impressed. The portions were smaller than expected for the cost, leaving some customers hungry. Despite some disappointments, the coleslaw and barbecue chicken received high praise. The friendly staff and delicious roasted potatoes were highlights for many customers. Catering services were well-received for private events. Overall, this establishment offers a refreshing change from traditional franchise restaurants and is worth a visit for those in the area looking for homemade cooking with a personal touch.
